MAYOR LOVE OF GRAND FORKS BOOSTS SOUTHERN AIR ROUTE

In advocating the southern air route, Mayor Love states that from Lethbridge to Vancouver through the Crow's Nest Pass is the shortest route and can be used throughout the year. He states that the recent trip of Grant McConachie demonstrated this, as he had to come over this route after leaving Calgary.

The air trip from Lethbridge to Vancouver can be made in four hours instead of nearly 40 by rail, and with ground facilities now in existence and landing fields being built, it will make travelling by air over the Rockies comparatively safe.

Coleman airport would be made a stopping point on the route

NEWS FROM WALES BY GARFIELD JONES

Garfield Jones, former Colemanite, and father of Wyndham and Reggie Jones, sends from Wales a copy of the Western Mail, Cardiff, containing some splendid photographs of the visit of the Prince of Wales to that city on May 11 in connection with the Jubilee celebration of King George. Commenting editorially, The Mail states:

"Every anticipation was realized in the joyous pageant which the people of Wales had prepared for the Prince of Wales when he came as the representative of His Majesty to receive homage and loyal congratulations on the attainment of the Royal Silver Jubilee. The tens of thousands who flocked from all parts were rewarded with a series of spectacles never before seen in the Principality."

"Long before the day was over the Prince had been afforded overwhelming evidence of the fact that in no part of the Empire has the Jubilee aroused more intense and patriotic enthusiasm or a more striking demonstration of loyal devotion than in his own Principality."

The Independent Fior d'Italia Orders throughout British Columbia and Alberta will hold a convention in Cranbrook commencing June 2. All grand officers from Fernie, Lethbridge, Coleman and Kimberley, also twenty delegates affiliated with the order, will be in attendance. Election of grand officers will also take place at this convention.—Ferne Free Press.

Echoes of the Past

The following was written concerning the stirring political campaigns of the late William Jennings Bryan, thrice defeated candidate for the presidency of the United States:

"As we read the record we are inclined to conclude that there is no royal road to political or economic freedom on the charts and maps so attractively drawn by those who seek first of all the opportunity to serve. And I believe that as we realize this we will become more and more cautious in espousing and supporting even the most eloquent and convincing discoverers and proponents of new plans, new blocs and new and untried theories of government. All these, like the orator first referred to, 'speak well of themselves.'—Christian Science Monitor.

Needed Local Improvements Being Made as Rapidly as Funds Permit--More Sidewalks To Be Built in Residence Area

After grading, rolling, surfacing with heavy gravel and again rolled, surfacing material will be applied to the roadway in the business section which will greatly abate the dust nuisance and add greatly to the appearance of the most used thorough fare of the town.

The contract, in charge of Contractor J. S. D'Appolonia, is part of the local improvements scheme planned by the council, and it is expected that further extension of this type of road surfacing will be continued next year. It is reported the present contract was for $6,500, and as much employment as possible will be given to those who have no regular work.

The council also has under consideration the building of additional sidewalks in places where most needed.

Leaders And Critics

In the face of enormous difficulties, which are the direct outcome of the Great War and the aftermath of depression following that terrible struggle, as more or less similar conditions have followed every great war in history, recognized leaders of men in all nations are striving mightily to bring order out of disorder and start the world on the road of progress and prosperity. Men are breaking down because of the burdens of responsibility they are carrying, and they are wearing themselves out mentally and physically in the effort to serve their fellow countrymen and the world.

In his almost superhuman struggle to maintain peace in Europe, and in his untiring efforts to promote disarmament, Ramsay MacDonald has become a much older man than his years. Reports that he must relinquish the premiership are now rife.

In Canada, Hon. R. B. Bennett has for five years devoted his every waking moment to the duties and responsibilities of government. People may criticize his policies and his methods, they may say he should have divided responsibility to a far greater extent with his cabinet colleagues instead of shouldering so much of the burden himself. But no one can say that as Prime Minister he has not given himself wholeheartedly and energetically to the discharge of the public duties and responsibilities placed in his care. As a result he has had a serious breakdown in health, may have to retire, and he has unquestionably considerably shortened his life.

Ex-President Hoover and President Roosevelt aged far beyond their years in office; the same can be said of the leaders of other nations, and it is true of men not only in the Federal arena in Canada but in the provinces and in municipal affairs. The strain is terrific, and men everywhere are paying the price. Yet they carry on because it is their duty to do so, and because they are sincerely desirous of rendering service to their country and fellowmen.

Probably because the great mass of people have difficulties and worries of their own to contend against and face, few of them give thought and little consideration to the manifold and gigantic problems which the government everywhere are endeavoring to solve. Rather, men in public life are the targets for all kinds of missiles of abuse and criticism, and the task is made much more difficult by the carping complaints of men of less calibre and by demagogues and agitators who take advantage of the prevailing situation to stir up the unthinking masses for their own selfish and ulterior motives and designs.

Recently in a little known publication there appeared one of the types of articles which make a sane man disgusted. The writer thereof urged people to read history. He declared that in every great crisis heretofore, and everywhere, a man had arisen to lead the way out, and he cited that "Moses, Christ, Pym, Abraham Lincoln, were real leaders because they did new things, utterly regardless of what had been done before." He then added that at Ottawa two Neros, meaning Mr. Bennett and Mr. King, are leading while the economic capital burns. Surely, he says, after five years of labor Canada should at last bring forth a man.

This writer cites Moses. He was a great leader, but his people turned against him, commenced the worship of false idols, a calf of gold, and paid the penalty of forty years wandering in the wilderness.

The writer speaks of the Christ. He was the world's greatest leader of all time. Yet the people of his day rejected him and demanded his death.

Abraham Lincoln was a leader, but throughout his life was criticized and vilified, accused of being a partizan, and died at the hands of an assassin.

History applauds these leaders, and their names will live forever, but in their day and generation they were despised and rejected by many, the objects of criticism and derision, and their work for humanity made difficult by the spite and hatred of other leaders who played upon the ignorance, the emotions and the selfishness of the masses.

The historian of the future will probably accord to the world leaders of to-day a much more honorable place, and give credit where it is due, than the pettifogging critics of to-day are willing or capable of according to them. The names and deeds of these leaders will be recalled long after those of their present day critics have passed into oblivion and from the memories of men.

These leaders have made mistakes. Of course they have, because they are human with all the limitations and frailties of human beings. But many of their mistakes were not of their own volition, but were forced upon them by the acts of others, either not so sincere and high-minded or who with less vision and ability adopted policies and followed courses of action which compelled others to steps which the latter knew to be mistaken but nevertheless had to be taken to avoid some possibly greater mistake and disaster.

The present is a time for patience and tolerance. It is no time for any well meaning person to be rocking the ship. That should be left to the wholly misguided and the irresponsible agitators. Constructive criticism is in order, and it is always welcomed by those entrusted with grave responsibilities. But Canada should give short shift to all carping critics who merely seek to destroy what others are striving to reconstruct and build up stronger and better.

For the 18 weeks of 1935 ended May 2, the total number of hogs graded in Canada was—graded alive at stock yards, 383,664; alive at packing plants, 706,726; and carcasses 21,632, a total of 1,110,022. For the corresponding weeks of 1934, the number was 1,100,223.

A Silver Jubilee Gift.

Merchants Serving Royal Family Build House For King

King George, who already owns a palace, a castle and two huge estates, has received a house as a Silver Jubilee present. It is a gift of the Royal Warrant Holders' Association, whose members have served the royal household with groceries, furniture and everything else, and who are entitled to display the royal coat of arms over their stores.

The architect is C. Beresford Marshall, a young and comparatively unknown designer of thirty-six years, who up to now has been designing luxury mansions on the American plan for London.

Marshall's design is something like the American Colonial style without the pillars. It is being built at Buri, Surrey, about thirty miles from London, on the estate of Lord Iveagh.

There is one principal bedroom and two guest rooms, with two double rooms for maids and a chauffeur's room.

The design was chosen by the King in consultation with Sir Giles Gilbert Scott, president of the Royal Institute of British Architects.

It is not likely, however, that the King will live in the house. In such cases he usually makes a present of the life-tenancy of the house to some minor member of the royal family, or to a high court official who is retiring from his service.

HE FELT MISERABLE AFTER MEALS

Acute Indigestion Relieved By Kruschen

The treatment which put this man right must surely be worth trying in every case of indigestion. Read what he says:—

"Two years ago I suffered very much from indigestion, constipation, and a most severe pain in my back. Food stood in my stomach. I felt most miserable after meals, and had no desire or appetite for them. A friend advised me to try Kruschen Salts. I did so, and I am most happy to testify that after a short time I felt the greatest relief. I continued taking Kruschen till I felt myself quite better and a new man. I feel as light-hearted as I did twenty years ago."—W. B.

What Kruschen did for him it will do for everybody who suffers from indigestion as he did. The fact is that "the little daily dose" of Kruschen first stimulates the flow of gastric juices to aid digestion, and then ensures a complete, regular and unflinching elimination of all waste matter every day.

Preventing Spread Of Disease

Passengers On English Air Lines Must Have Health Certificate

Air passengers in the future will be treated like beef being examined and stamped at the port of departure, according to Mr. M. Cadman, of Hull, England. In a conference in that city he declared that to prevent diseases being spread round the world by airplanes, passengers eventually would not be permitted to travel unless each carried a chop of health in documentary form.

Fruit-a-tives Gave Veteran Quick Relief From Constipation

Isaac P. Booth, 70 Wayland Ave., Toronto, relates in a sworn statement how Fruit-a-tives gave him quick relief from constipation and rheumatism brought on by military service. So that everyone can be sure of the truth, he told his experience under oath before a notary.

"I was greatly bothered with constipation brought on by military service. I tried Fruit-a-tives and they gave quick relief and now keep me regular. I also suffered from rheumatism. Since I have used Fruit-a-tives, it does not bother me any more unless I take foolish chances in wet or cold weather." Copy of Mr. Booth's complete sworn statement will be sent on request. Scheme To Bring Rain

Frenchman Requires $10,000,000 To Go Ahead With Idea

Men are still seeking artificial rains and Mr. Bernard J. Dubos, of the Meteorological Society of France, is the latest to have a scheme. He would build a steel and concrete funnel 2,000 feet high. Through this he would force water vapor into the upper air with the thought that it would return in copious rains over a large area.

The funnel would be constructed so that it would be tapered with the broad end at the top and the whole supported by struts and pillars. It would be about 450 feet in diameter at the top and resemble a large telescope standing on the smaller end.

The underlying idea is to have a series of wind vane at the top which will catch whatever breeze there may be and start a whirl of air inside the spout, create a vacuum. This would give a vacuum core on the principle that waterspouts have vacuum cores.

There is one detail curbing Mr. Dubos from building his core at once. He requires $10,000,000 to go ahead with the construction. He will have to spend much to buy materials and build the spout. And he is finding it hard to get anyone to gamble the $10,000,000 on the chance that the thing might work and produce rain. It would take a lot of bushels of wheat, for instance, to pay the interest and principal on that much money.

Perhaps Mr. Dubos will not get anyone to take him up on his venture. But that will not curb other scientists and inventors trying to find some way to get rain from the clouds. And, some day, one of them is quite likely to solve the secret, even though people may laugh at his efforts while he is experimenting.

The Hon. William Joseph Parnell McMillan, M.D., C.M., F.A.C.S., L.M.C.C., Prime Minister, Provincial Treasurer and Minister of Education of Prince Edward Island will open the Canadian Handicrafts Guild special exhibition being held on board the Cunard White Star liner Ascania. It was announced by Colonel Wilfred A. Bovey, president of the Guild.

Dr. McMillan is also president of the Prince Edward Island branch of the Guild, and is visiting Montreal at this time to receive an honour from McGill University.

The show will be held in the public rooms of the steamer while the Ascania is in port lying alongside Shed No. 2 on her next trip to Montreal.

The exhibition of hand-made crafts will be exhibited, ranging from the most delicate textiles to wrought iron pieces. From Montreal will be a group of copies of old Canadian furniture and lamps which have been effectively used locally. There will be two examples of old Canadian country chairs, one with leather thong seat and the other with twisted oak seat.

The Four-Dollar Bill

Reason They Are Rarely Seen Is Not Generally Known

An article in the Port Arthur News-Chronicle says: "In a Cumberland street shop window a Canadian four-dollar bill has been on exhibition as a rarity. Most people know that the four-dollar bill is a rarity because so seldom seen in circulation but the reason is not so well known. When the first issue was made something over 30 years ago it was found carrying a picture of the Michigan Soo locks. Someone at Ottawa had got hold of the wrong picture, evidently intending to put the picture of the Canadian Soo locks, then comparatively new, on the currency. As soon as the bills began circulation the error was noticed and called to Ottawa's attention, particularly by residents of the Canadian Soo. Naturally, the issue with that particular picture was not continued. Hence the rarity.

Commonest Names In China

In Canada the Smiths and the Joneses take good prizes for telephone directory listings. In China it's the Chens and the Wongs. In the Shanghai directory there are 638 Chens. The Wongs are pretty close with 674. Other popular Chinese names are Woo and Koo and Ding and Dong. Also to be found are the Ahs and Oos.

Collection Is Valuable

Japan Afloat Ancient Clocks May Soon Be Sold

Fears that the famous "Daimyo no Toki" collection of timepieces, once owned by leading Daimyo together with old books on the subject of clocks, will soon be lost to Japan, is being expressed by Japanese newspapers. The clocks have been known as the Takabayashi collection, and have been kept at the Tokyo Museum of Science for many years. They were recently offered for sale, and an American collector offered $15,000 for them, a bid which was increased by a British resident in Kobe. It is not believed that the collection has actually been sold, but it is feared that if the intention to sell becomes widely known collectors in Europe and America will offer such a price that the owner will part with them.

Serfdom Abolished

By New Decree Ethiopia Advanced

In Civilization By 1,000 Years Emperor Haile Selassie issued a decree abolishing serfdom throughout Ethiopia and equalizing the system of land taxation.

An announcement said the masses acclaimed the step, and added that the abolition of unequal land taxation would advance Ethiopia 1,000 years in civilization.

Ethiopia for centuries was one of the most profitable centres of the African slave trade and while other countries gradually abolished the trade, the institution remained in that country after its admission to the League of Nations. In recent years slavery there has taken the form of forced labor and "debt peonage."

Open Golf Tournament

International Event To Be Held At Fonthill, Ont.

"We are leaving no stone unturned," stated President A.M. Brooks K.C., of the Lookout Point Golf Club, "to make the course and clubhouse as nearly perfect as possible for the holding of the General Brock Hotel Open Tournament at Fonthill, Ont., on July 11, 12 and 13. We recognize that this event is attracting international attention and that in all probability the entry list will be one of the largest ever seen in an event of this kind in America. The committee in charge of the tournament are just as enthusiastic as I am and have wholeheartedly endorsed the changes and improvements which will be necessary and particularly those suggested by B. L. Anderson, tournament manager, after his recent inspection of the course."

Among the changes to the course will be the lengthening of all tees so that each day will demand a slightly different shot depending on whether the markers are on the front, center or back of the tees. All greens are to be aproned extending some thirty or forty feet in front of them and there will be a six-foot closely clipped fringe around all putting surfaces. All bunkers are to be renovated and filled with new sand and each one of them will be furnished for the championship. As a precaution against accidents the bridge leading to the 15th green is to be reinforced because of the large number of spectators anticipated, and furthermore, several of the important greens will be roped off, particularly the 9th and 18th. An attractive new entrance gate is to be constructed and elaborate preparations for catering are being made under the personal direction of Vernon G. Cardy, president of the General Brock Hotel.

Efforts For Control Of World Wheat Shipments Have Temporarily Failed

London.—Efforts to control world wheat shipments were temporarily in the discard Sunday and Argentine delegates to the world wheat conference, openly jubilant, said their country's refusal to restrict imports had been completely vindicated.

Alone among the 21 nations signatory to the 1933 world wheat pact, Argentina battled almost from the first against efforts of the Canadian-Australian-American bloc to enforce quota restrictions provided in the pact.

An official communique released as the shortest wheat conference on record closed Saturday confirmed advanced reports that all operative clauses will be suspended during the one year's extension of the pact, to Aug. 1, 1936.

The statement, however, forecast an increased glut of world stocks and urged revival of restriction measures.

While two successive crop failures in North America had resulted in temporary amelioration of the statistical position, the statement said, maintenance of the present level of world wheat acreage, given the average yields per acre, must result in the reaccumulation in wheat exporting countries of further burdensome surpluses.

The next international wheat conference will be summoned in October, authoritative quarters said, when it is hoped the Big Four will be in position to reach an agreement on export quotas.

Bush Huskies Kill Boy

Six-Year-Old Child Attacked At The Pas

The Pas, Man.—Torn by a pack of bush-bred husky dogs on the outskirts of The Pas, six-year-old Mike Seginovich died in hospital. The animals, owned by a local trapper, were brought in from the bush north of The Pas a short time ago. The cause of their attack is unknown.

With Joe Kryschuk, another lad of his own age, little Mike had been playing on an unused trail near his home. First intimation of the tragedy came to Mrs. Kryschuk when her son came running, shouting to her the dogs were killing Mike.

Mrs. Kryschuk found four dogs swarming over the child on the ground and, driving them off, carried him to her home nearby. The animals followed her as she carried the mangled boy along the trail. An inquest will be held.

Government Policy On Relief Camp Operation Gives Complete Freedom

Ottawa.—Government policy on relief camps operated by the department of national defence gives those employed therein complete freedom of movement, according to a voluminous document tabled in the House of Commons.

The document covers all regulations issued by the department for administration of these institutions. The purpose of the regulations is to provide relief for "homeless, single men," who were otherwise uncared for in other relief schemes.

Accommodation, food, clothing and medical care, and a daily allowance of 20 cents, were furnished, while the men were required to work eight hours a day, with Saturday afternoon, Sundays and statutory holidays observed.

"Personnel will be free to leave the work to accept other employment offered; they may be discharged for cause, and if so discharged will be subsequently eligible for re-employment under the scheme, except when there is a reasonable probability of the men behaving properly in future," the regulations set forth.

On discharge from camp—except in a case of misconduct, the government gave free transportation to the

Ban Silver Coin Imports

Canadian Money Not Affected By U.S. Government Order

Washington.—A ban against imports of foreign silver coins was declared by the United States government in what was officially described as a "spirit of co-operation" with nations harassed by high silver prices.

Canadian money was not affected by the government's order forbidding entry into this country of foreign silver coins. The only coinage involved was that where silver content has become more valuable as bullion than in the form of currency. Peru is the largest country affected by the embargo, which also will apply to metal currencies of several other nations. A list of such countries now is being prepared.

The step was taken by Secretary Henry Morgenthau of the treasury shortly after he had disclosed new researches into money conditions abroad and stated flatly no country has made currency stabilization overtures since his guarded invitation a week ago.

The silver coin embargo on all except licensed entries was designed to aid those nations which—largely through the price-raising silver buying policy of the United States government—are confronted with the problem of preventing the melting of their coins for sale as bullion.

French-Canadians To Spend Month In Toronto Learning English

Toronto.—Establishing a precedent in the educational history of Ontario and Quebec, 100 French-Canadian teachers will come here this summer to spend a month learning English. For the past nine years it has been the practice of the Ontario department of education to send Ontario teachers to Quebec city to live among French-Canadians and learn the language and this year Ontario will play host to Quebec teachers.

Three Racers Killed

Were Making Speed Tests For 500-Mile Auto Race

Indianapolis.—H. W. ("Stubby") Stubbelfield and his riding mechanic, Leo Whittaker, both of Los Angeles, were killed when the race-car they were attempting to qualify for the 500-mile race hurtled over the wall at the southwest turn of the motor speedway here.

Both Stubbelfield and Whittaker were thrown clear of the car and died soon after being picked up. The accident was the second fatal crash of the day. Johnny Hannon, 25, of Morristown, Pa., was killed in the morning when his car jumped the wall.

Hannon was making his first turn around the track in a car which he hoped to drive in the annual 500-mile race. On the treacherous northeast turn it skidded, went through a concrete retaining wall, rear end first, and landed 50 feet from the track. Hannon apparently met instant death. Harold Reeves of Indianapolis, the mechanic, was taken from the machine severely injured. Hannon's death raised the speedway death toll to 28 since racing began at the track in 1909.

Plane Victims Buried

Moscow Mourns Those Who Died In Maxim Gorky Crash

Moscow.—The people of Moscow, in one of their greatest demonstrations of public grief, thronged to the new Virgin monastery and deposited the remains of the 49 victims of the Maxim Gorky disaster in crypts and graves.

The remains of Pilot Nikolai Blagin, who caused the world's worst aeroplane disaster by crashing into the Gorky while starting in violation of orders, found a place of honor in burial with the others.

Although he had been held up to the public as an "air hoodlum," his ashes lay in state with the others when Joseph Stalin, dictator of Soviet Russia, stood his turn as guard of honor in the Hall of Columns of the Labor Union house.

Coast Relief Strikers

Would Return To Camp, But Halted By Picketers

Victoria.—Between 700 and 800 relief camp workers now in Vancouver are eager to return to the camps but they have been halted by strike picketers, British Columbia relief authorities stated.

These workers have made application to be returned to the camps, have been given routine medical examinations and are prepared to leave but cannot get past the picket posts, it was declared.

Relief statistics showed approximately 2,000 relief workers from British Columbia camps were out on strike at the end of April while 5,616 men remained in the camps. There were 7,649 men in the camps at the end of March.

Civil Service Dismissals

Ottawa.—Since July, 1930, a total of 12,840 temporary and permanent civil servants have been "separated" from the service by reason of dismissal, superannuation, death or other causes, a return tabled in the House of Commons showed. The dismissals totalled 976.

COMPLETES LONG TASK

For thirty years Colonel Wedgwood, prominent British Parliamentarian, has been writing the History of Parliament, and has now completed the work. He worked on this colossal task for years, and only recently has had the help of a joint Parliamentary Committee. It is expected that publication costs will amount to $75,000.

Knighted By His Majesty

New Governor-General Of Canada Receives Further Honors

London.—John Buchan, eminent author and parliamentarian who will be Canada's next governor-general, received a further honor on May 24 when it was announced His Majesty has approved his appointment as a Knight Grand Cross of the Order of St. Michael and St. George.

He has already been elevated to the peerage, although he has not yet chosen his title, and thus the honor is complementary. He is generally expected to succeed the title Baron Buchan of Tweedsmuir, in recognition of his Scottish environment. The barony takes precedence over his knighthood.

Hitler Conscripted Decree

German-Canadian Club Members Will Not Respond

London, Ont.—With jeers and catcalls members of London's German-Canadian Club greeted announcement of the clause in Reichsfuehrer Hitler's conscription decree which declares that all Germans between the ages of 18 and 45, who have become foreign citizens, must return to the Reich for training.

"Adolf Hitler might not recognize our Canadian citizenship," said Henry Wolfe, secretary of the club, speaking for his conferees, "but we do. Canada to us means home. We stand to lose everything if we return to Germany. We gain nothing if we go."

International Figure

Jane Addams, Noted Prize Winner, Dies At Chicago

Chicago.—Jane Addams, internationally known social worker and champion of world peace, died in Passavant hospital, where she had undergone a major operation. Mrs. Addams, founder of the famous Chicago Social Settlement, Hull House, and a Nobel prize winner for her peace efforts, would have been 75 years old on Sept. 6.

"BIRDMAN" TO RISK DEATH AGAIN

Undimayed by the failure of his wing harness on the first attempt, William Picou, 19, above, of North Bergen, will make another try from an altitude of 10,000 feet. His first effort narrowly missed ending in tragedy when the device failed to check his fall and Picou was saved by his parachute.

Premier Says Empire Is Influence For Peace In Broadcast Message

Ottawa.—The world to-day "is moved by force and fear in a way hitherto unknown," said Prime Minister R. B. Bennett in an Empire Day speech here, May 24. "It is true millions are animated by motives of suspicion and hatred. By what agency can the hand of friendship and confidence be extended to them if not by the British Empire?"

The prime minister spoke to the people of the British Empire in a broadcast arranged by the Canadian Radio Commission and picked up by the British Broadcasting Corporation. His speech took the form of an Empire Day message, and he referred at the outset to the fact that the birthday "of the great Queen Victoria" has become an imperial holiday.

"I have just returned from London where I was privileged to represent Canada at the silver jubilee celebrations of the accession of our sovereign to the throne of his fathers," continued Mr. Bennett. "In the heart of the Empire a magnificent demonstration of loyalty was on that occasion to be expected, but the spontaneous outpouring of affection that was then witnessed is beyond the power of the imagination to conceive."

"It was a tribute to a king and queen whose family life, service and devotion to duty symbolized all that is finest and best in the myriads of homes of all types and classes of people throughout our vast Empire. In London I listened to messages from all parts of the world—yet parts of that same Empire. Science had annihilated distance."

It was true, said Mr. Bennett, that there were millions of men and women who had deduced their powers of speech and action to the cause of freedom. "By what practical agency can we hope that human liberty and freedom will be preserved more effectively than through the influence of the British Empire?" he asked.

"I have encountered many hardships and have been sorely tried," the prime minister said. "Men who are now reaching manhood have never known a peaceful world. Security and universal peace we dimly see in the distance. They, unfortunately, are not peace realists. Suffering and hardship still follow us—the lengthening shadows of the last Great War."

Ramsey MacDonald May Hand Over Leadership

Reconstruction Of British Cabinet Likely To Take Place

London.—Rumors of a cabinet reconstruction to take place next month have been intensified. Speculation and gossip have been the lobbies of the House of Commons.

Several morning newspapers asserted it was definitely decided that Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald would hand over the leadership of the government to Stanley Baldwin, lord president of the council, in June. It was believed, however, the prospect changes would not be announced before Whitsuntide.

When the combined king's birthday and jubilee honors list is published June 3, it is expected at least two members of the cabinet will be elevated to the peerage. They are Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister, secretary for the colonies, and Sir John Gilmour, home secretary. Informed political quarters said this meant the reconstruction naturally would fall during the Whitsun holiday, which comes June 8.

Amendment Defeated

Ottawa.—The senate banking and commerce committee defeated an amendment which would compel all persons in Canada receiving net annual incomes of $2,000 or more to contribute 25 cents a week or $13 a year to the Dominion unemployment insurance fund.

Britain's Air Force Will Be Tripled Within The Next Two Years

London.—Previously announced plans to expand the Royal Air Force were put in the shade by the government's announcement to parliament.

The domestic air force of first-line machines will be tripled within two years, whereas the first program called for some increases over five years. The new plan doubles within two years the number of machines at home that would have been furnished at the end of five years.

First-line fighting craft at home, instead of being increased to 840 in five years, will be increased to 1,500 by March 1937. Fifteen hundred planes, absolute parity with Germany and France is the goal.

That goal the British government is determined to reach and maintain, the House of Commons and the House of Lords were told by Stanley Baldwin and Lord Londonderry, respective government spokesmen in the two houses.

The government rode roughshod over a Labor party amendment to reduce the huge air expansion expenditures by a vote of 340 to 52. Mr. Baldwin found several points in the speech of Chancellor Adolf Hitler which he thought, offered promise. In several directions Hitler had defined the German attitude. Points of his speech "deserve the closest and frankest study from all of us," he said. "We shall not fail to do our utmost to bring about in all directions all that is possible by international agreement."

Chief of Hitler's points meeting with approval of the lord president of the council, was his willingness to conclude an air convention supplementing the Locarno treaty, with the inclusion of an attack free to accompany an agreement on limitation of planes.

Next was Hitler's indication the air pact might be bound up with an effort to safeguard the civilian population against indiscriminate attack from the air.

Britain's defence requirements in the air had been given the most careful study, Mr. Baldwin added, and parity in the air was necessary to secure the two objects most desired by Britain—some form of collective security pact, and some method of limitation. He endorsed Hitler's stand that limitation could best be achieved starting from parity, than if different nations set arithmetical figures of their needs without relation to others.

Notes and Comments

Last week a concert was given by the school children under their musical instructor, the main reason for it being to enable parents to judge if the venture of adding singing lessons to the course of studies was worth while. But parents were lacking, a mere handful attending. It indicates indifference. The school trustees desire guidance in intelligent public opinion to determine if they should renew the contract in common with other schools in the Pass to continue singing lessons.

Coleman spends ratepayers' money on utility improvements while Blainmore spends considerable on frills. That which aims to be spectacular usually is of far less benefit than what may be utilitarian.

Victoria Day was observed in Bellevue by a delightful children's program directed by Rev. and Mrs. Upton. In the bright sunshine and surrounded by green-clad hills a bit of "Merrie England" was enacted in the dancing of sixteen sprightly girls around the maypole. Others sang choruses and more youthful performers danced the Irish jig and the Highland sword dance. The May Queen, Esther Chiarovano, elected by popular vote, was crowned by Mrs. R. P. Borden. The stately minuet was danced by other girls. It was a very pleasing picture, symbolical of Victorian days, especially appropriate for the day. Behind such a program lies considerable careful thought and instruction.

Throughout the past five years many people have lost money. In addition many have become so panicky as to throw caution to the winds and take the attitude that things cannot be worse. That was the cry in 1930 when the Conservative government was elected in place of the Liberals. It is the cry to-day and is the reason the promise of a monthly dividend attracts people who do not want to bother their minds as to where the money is coming from. Individually we must all take a part in effecting our own recovery.

We quote from an address by Mr. W. H. Keithley, advertising manager of Canadian Industries, Limited, entitled "Building a Nation." In it he stated:

"First of all there must be a revival of the spirit, a determination to continue the building which has gone forward in the past and which has brought us to our present condition of material prosperity. That matter what the kickers and grouchers may have to say against it, is enormously better than was the lot of the people who settled up this territory (Canada) one and a half and two centuries ago.

"Had we lived in 1812 no one would have given a tinker's curse when our crops failed, and if we were neither lucky nor industrious enough to wrest sufficient food from other sources, the probability is that we would have died in our little cabins and none been the wiser or the sorrier. Contrast that with today's situation, where in spite of the depression, food, shelter and a reasonable degree of sustenance has been available to every citizen who may have been unfortunate enough to lose a job.

"All these things are the result of building on the part of those who have gone before. Now, what to do about building from this point forward? If others have built, we can also build, but building, though its accomplished fact may be of the hand and the head, is in the first instance of the spirit, and we need to look backward to see what has been accomplished in order that we may kindle the spirit which will permit us to build at least as well and creditably upon the structure which we have inherited from the past."

Pessimists harp so much on grievances that instead of instilling hope and courage and the spirit to win over difficulties, they picture and forecast blue ruin. Calamity howlers are not constructive. They instill fear and weaken the morale of those easily influenced. The builders of Canada were made of sterner stuff and faced hardships such as this generation has never been called on to endure.

At the time of writing this column, Major Douglas' report on a Social Credit plan for Alberta has not been released. It will be somewhat in the nature of a prize drawing, so eagerly is it awaited.

Whatever the need in a commodity, there is a UNION-MADE product; wherever the need for service, there is a UNION service.—Alberta Labor News.

"If fifteen out of every one hundred men and women are out of work, could not the other eighty-five, by enlisting the help of industry, press, churches, social agencies and other organizations, help to place a substantial proportion of these fifteen back to work? If this were earnestly attempted in every community, we might find that our relief problems would assume relatively smaller proportions."

The foregoing is from an article in Maclean's Magazine, entitled "Municipal Debt", by Thomas Bradshaw, president of the North American Life Assurance Co., who also states:

"The chief asset of a municipality is not its citizens, for they are the municipality. Rather it is its good credit standing, the product of careful and wise administration of its affairs. A municipality with a good credit standing is certain to be one where the taxes are reasonable and civic services adequate."

The depressed price of farm products is a problem with which everyone is familiar, but on the 1913 basis farm product prices have never been as low as gasoline. Between 1913 and 1920 gasoline did not rise in price to nearly the same extent as farm products, yet since 1920 its price has almost continuously declined. The data for the above graph are based on figures published by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

A FAIR DEAL POLICY

In the fifty-four years of its existence, Imperial Oil Limited has always welcomed legislation in the interests of labor and the basic industries. It has never had a labor dispute. It has always paid fair wages. To the greatest extent possible it has provided continuous employment and it has given its workers increasing leisure so as to expand employment. It has sickness and death benefits and old age pensions because it believes that the worker and his dependents are entitled to such protection.

Imperial Oil has always tried to deal fairly with collateral industry and with its competitors. Its success in this connection is indicated by the fact that it has never had a major lawsuit. It has always recognized the principle that the only satisfactory business transaction is the one which affords a fair profit to all parties concerned. It has fulfilled all its undertakings. It has enforced no onerous claims on others.

Imperial Oil has always tried to deal fairly with the consumer. It has continuously improved the quality and steadily reduced the prices of its products. It has invested millions to make those products always available wherever they may be needed.

In 1934 Imperial Oil earned $3,023,400.12 from its Canadian manufacturing and marketing operations. This, you may say, is a lot of money, but to earn that amount Imperial Oil had to make and market goods to a value of $82,841,111.15. The storekeeper who in the course of a year sold $8,280 worth of goods and made a profit of $300 would not be regarded as enjoying an undue measure of prosperity.

But his ratio of profit to the total volume of his business would be the same as Imperial Oil's.

It has been Imperial Oil's practice to "make wisely, measure truly, trade justly" for this it believes to be the secret of success.

Gift For Chief Guide

Lady Baden-Powell Receives Standard And An Token of Loyalty

Lady Baden-Powell, Chief of the Girl Guides of the World, is privileged to use her own special standard. In 1922 some of the English County Commissioners planned to make a standard for the Chief Guide, and a small committee was formed. Overseas Commissioners of Provinces and States joined the County Commissioners. Each emblem was worked, and all were gathered together and mounted. The Standard is a token of loyalty and regard to the Chief Guide.

The Emblems are as follows: The Trefoil in gold on blue—the Guide Emblem showing the three promises. The blue sea has silver waves and dolphins, with three ships sailing forth to the end of the earth to carry the Guide Movement to all parts of the world. Also in the midst of the sea is the Gold Fish which the Chief Guide alone wears.

Then there are red motto bands—the red for cheerfulness, and the mottoes are, on the other side, "Be Prepared," and on the other, "An nyd pw Pwll pyd yw," the Powell motto in Welsh, meaning "Where there is a Powell there is safety."

Between the motto bands is a space of green and white triangles, and these are the tents of the Guide camps on the green grass, referring to the outdoor side of Guide life.

In the fly are two fine lions, and these are the Baden and Powell crests. It is not possible for a woman to have a crest, as they are worn on a man's helm in battle, but here they are, to turn Guides' thoughts to their great founder, who in his leadership and comradeship for the Scout and Guide Movement has been so splendidly helped by the Chief Guide.

Canadian High Commissioner Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Canadian high commissioner in London, had been seriously ill but had recovered, and there was no thought of replacing him, Prime Minister R. B. Bennett declared. Mr. Bennett declared that the present Canadian high commissioner was one of the greatest ministers to hold that office since Sir Charles Tupper.

An Interesting Test

Shows More Boys Are Color Blind Than Girls

One boy in ten is color blind. This is the discovery of Dr. James Drever, professor of psychology in University of Edinburgh, made in tests of pupils in public schools.

"This can have tragic consequences," says the professor, "especially as now winking red, green and amber lights control the traffic and these children are the future drivers of motor vehicles."

The figures represent a 100 per cent. increase over previous calculations.

"It is a serious thing to discover that 12 boys out of 120 might confuse the 'stop' and 'go' signals of traffic lights," he said.

"Nothing can be done to cure color blindness. If it is possible to correct confusion between certain colors with spectacles, the result is that other colors become confused."

"A similar number of girls was tested, but in only one instance was there defective color sense."

It has been found that while fewer girls are color-blind, color-blindness is transmitted to children from mothers rather than fathers. The mother of colorblind children often isn't so afflicted herself.

World Is Getting Better

The Amherstburg Echo says the jail at Mooretown, Ontario, is to be sold by auction because it has held no prisoners for forty years. Turnkeys at Sandwich had to wash dishes because there were no prisoners to do it. There was no cook in the Winnipeg jail because of a lack of prisoners of that category. The world's improving.

BRITISH CABINET SHAKEUP PREDICTED AS SIMON'S POLICY CRITICIZED

Reports from London state that changes will shortly be made in the British cabinet, and that there is a possibility of Premier Ramsay MacDonald (left) succeeding Sir John Simon (centre) as British Foreign Minister. Rumors are current that a section of the Conservative party is dissatisfied with the handling of foreign affairs by Sir John, and if MacDonald took his place, Stanley Baldwin (right), would automatically become Prime Minister.

Young Scientist Returns

Englishman Finishes Two Years Study In The North

Two lonely years in the Arctic are over for T. P. Manning, youthful British scientist who made studies in the distant north for the British Geographical Society.

Traveling alone, the young Englishman came trudging into Churchill from Southampton Island, 500 miles north of there.

Modest and more than a bit bashful, Manning was not talkative about his sojourn in the Arctic through two summers and winters. His studies were extensive, including even fauna of the region.

Most of his two years in the Arctic was spent alone on Southampton Island, a Hudson's Bay Company post point where he obtained supplies. His long trek out was made without a companion. With a team of four dogs, he hit southward.

On the journey he crossed 40 miles of dangerous ice floe between Southampton Island and Chesterfield Inlet. Then he followed the ice along the coast south, making the journey into Churchill without mishap.

Best Advertising Medium

Newspapers During 1934 Received Largest Share Of Allotments

Newspapers during 1934 received 61.8 per cent. of $223,216,520 sent by 367 national advertisers during 1934 according to an analysis released by the bureau of advertising of the American Newspaper Publishers Association.

The report showed that magazines received 25 per cent. of the total amount, while chain broadcasting received 13.2 per cent.

Compared with 1933, when the bureau analysis covered the appropriations of 351 advertisers spending $185,706,924, the current analysis showed both a greater number of national advertisers as well as a higher individual expenditure.

Newest Naval Weapon

Germany Has Already Constructed 450 "Vest Pocket" Warships

Re-arming Germany's newest naval weapon—swift "vest pocket" torpedo boats as revolutionary as her "vest pocket" battleships—was revealed recently.

Foreign naval experts said the Reich already has constructed 450 tiny speed boats, capable of 60 knots each, and manned by five men and carrying four torpedoes.

A second, similar development, the experts said, is another speed boat twice as large, carrying 10 men and having an operating range of almost 2,000 miles.

Naval observers, asserting the new craft would give other powers much food for thought as the Reich's recently disclosed plans to build 250-ton submarines, listed these major advantages of the craft:

Their cost is little and their operation economical; their crew is small; they are so small and can change direction so fast they would be hard to hit; their four torpedoes, with any kind of luck, can do damage to enemy ships.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

JUNE 2

OUR DAY OF WORSHIP

Golden Text: God is a spirit: and they that worship him must worship in spirit and truth. John 4:24.
Devotional Reading: Psalm 62:1-12, 13.

Explanations And Comments

Let Worship Be Joyful, Psalm 100. The Psalmist calls upon all lands to worship God. "Think of an Israelite so enlightened as to God's purpose," exclaimed Dr. F. B. Meyer, "as he called upon all lands to join in the great chorus of God's praise! This is surely the missionary hymn of the Church! The Psalm is known as the Old Hundred, but the name is a misnomer. It is always new."

Worship God with a joyful heart, make us joyful to serve him with gladness, come before him with singing. This frame of mind should be natural to one for God is our Creator, he is his people, the sheep, as it were, of his pasture, for whom, like a shepherd, he tenderly cares.

"It is a poor congregation that cannot sit or stand contented to be dumb when God is praised. If gladness is part of our service of him, all of us will refuse to be alienated. The Old Testament church was not ignorant of the devotional use of a choir, but it knew what it was to supplement, not to supplant, the irrepressible praise of a whole congregation. To entrust all our expression of praise to deputations is to forget to praise."

We should engage in public worship with thank and praise, giving thanks unto him and blessing his name.

Cows Attend Banquet

Two Bovines Are Guests At Luncheon In New York

Members of the American Guernsey Cattle Club sat down to their annual luncheon at New York with two of their most distinguished proteges, who moored and belloved through out.

The guests of honor, Iceberg and Foremost Southern Maid, ate grass and took bows from a centre table in the banquet hall of a midtown hotel.

It was Iceberg's first glimpse of civilization. He was born on the edge of the Antarctic circle with the Admiral Byrd expedition. Foremost Southern Maid is one of the three cows the expedition took along to furnish milk to the men.

At the luncheon the gold medal awarded to Admiral Byrd by the club for "distinguished service to the dairy industry" was received by Lieutenant-Commander G. O. Noville in the absence of his chief.

The two bovines, accustomed to the hazards of an adventurous life, took the whole proceedings much more calmly than the jittery bellhops pressed into service as cow hands for the occasion.

Cheap Sea Trip

Organization In Germany Provides Cruise At Low Cost

For a three-weeks' cruise to Madeline at a cost of only $6.25 a week, 8,000 German workers will shortly leave Berlin. The charge includes everything—fare, food, trips and insurance. It is one of the cheapest cruises in the world. It is organized by the "Strength Through Joy" movement, and the workers and their families will travel on German liners. Many of them have never seen the sea. Last year the "Strength Through Joy" movement sent 80,000 workers on sea voyages, and this year it is hoped to send 160,000.

The earth's population is doubling about every 30 years. At this rate, there will be 3,000,000,000 persons on earth before the year 2000 A.D.

Little Journeys In Science

GOLD

(By Gordon H. Guest, M.A.)

The use of gold dates from earliest times and it is probable that it was one of the first metals used by man. Native gold occurs in veins running through quartz veins and also in the beds of streams whose sands have been formed from the breaking down of such gold-bearing quartz. It has been discovered in nuggets which vary in size from a tiny pebble to a mass weighing over a hundred pounds. In the past few years the gold production of the world has amounted to about $400,000,000 annually. Of this amount South Africa produces over half.

Native gold is obtained in crude form by placer mining. The sand containing the gold is shaken or stirred in troughs of running water, called sluices. The sand is swept away leaving the heavier gold at the bottom of the sluice. Sometimes the sand containing the gold is washed away from its natural location into the sluices by powerful streams of water delivered under pressure from pipes. This method of securing gold is called hydraulic mining. The mining the gold-bearing quartz is stamped into fine powder in stamping mills and the gold is extracted by either the amalgamation or the cyanide process.

In the amalgamation process the powder containing the gold is washed over copper plates whose surfaces have been amalgamated with mercury. The gold sticks to the mercury or alloys with it, and after a time the gold and mercury are scraped off and the mixture is distilled. The mercury distills off leaving the gold behind in the retort ready for refining. The cyanide process depends upon the fact that gold is soluble in a solution of sodium cyanide in the presence of the oxygen of the air. The powdered gold is stamped into fine powder in stamping mills and treated with a very dilute sodium cyanide solution which dissolves the gold. The gold is obtained from this solution by electrolysis.

Gold is a yellow metal which is 19.3 times as heavy as an equal volume of water. It is the most malleable and ductile of all the metals. Malleability is the property of a metal of being hammered or rolled into sheets and gold has been hammered out into sheets so thin that it requires 280,000 leaves placed one upon another to occupy the thickness of an inch, and furthermore one ounce can be hammered out so as to cover 180 square feet. Ductility is the property which most metals possess of being drawn out into wires and gold is so ductile that one ounce can be drawn out into a wire about 50 miles long.

Pure gold is used as gold leaf. The metal is too soft to be used alone for other purposes and is alloyed with silver or copper. The fineness of gold is usually expressed in terms of carats. 24 carats gold being pure, while 18 carat (75 per cent) is the grade used for the best jewelry.

Some Strange Customs

Ethnologist Tells About Queer Ideas Of African Tribes

Frederick G. Carmichael, ethnologist, has returned to New York from an Africa sojourn and explained, amongst other things, how the Wanyamwezi tribes christen their babies by the sneeze method and what happens to a tribesman's wife when her spouse gets hurt in the hunt.

At a christening ceremony, he said, the high priest holds the baby and calls off the names of its ancestors. When the child sneezes as it invariably does, it is an indication that an ancestor's soul has entered its body and the baby takes the name of the ancestor thus named.

When a member of the tribe is hurt on a hunt, said Carmichael, the wife is blamed and is given a knock on the back of the head to make amends.

Extensive Salvage Plan

Attempt To Refloat Ships At Bottom Of White Sea

Twenty ships resting at the bottom of the White Sea since the years of the Great War will again see the light of day according to the schedule of a special squad of engineers working day and night on plans for the refloating, cargo salvaging and junking. Although complete maps of the White Sea prepared at the port of Archangel exactly designate the resting places of no less than 114 ships which went down in the same period, only twenty are considered technically possible to salvage.

"Well, hardly," agreed Dad. "Is that all, Louise?"

"Very nearly. She says: 'Let me know what time Nancy will arrive at Colorado Springs, and I will send some trustworthy person to meet her with an automobile, as Pine Ridge is on a branch road and our only train leaves early in the morning. If no one greets her on arrival, instruct her, please, to sit quietly in the station until called for.'"

A girlish chuckle escaped Aunt Judy.

"You can check yourself in the parcel room, Nancy! Proceed, Louise. I beg pardon for interrupting."

Jack winked at an aunt as the other retorted: "You're as bad as the children, Judith. But there's not much more. She says: 'I feel sure that this experience will improve your daughter.' How's that, James?"

Said Dad, with spirit: "Why on earth should she imagine that our Nancy needs improvement?"

"And how would she get it in a little one-horse western town?" asked Mother.

"This way," smiled Aunt Louise, reverting to the missive: "She would get away from the narrow New England viewpoint. She would learn something about the vastness of her country."

"I suppose she means those 'great open spaces' we read about," laughed Jack, while his aunt, ignoring him, continued:

"The milder climate would improve her health, and she would experience the satisfaction of being self-supporting. Please write at once, and believe me, dear James, your affectionate though unseen cousin, Columbine Nelson."

Aunt Louise looked up. "Well," she declared, drawing a deep breath, "I call that the—the very limit!"

For this meticulous teacher of English to use an expression even remotely approaching slang, was an event in itself. Her family smiled; and Nancy retorted, "It's plain, Aunt Lou, that this is an occasion when Webster's Unabridged is totally inadequate! Dad dear, how can this venerable lady be your first cousin? And did she acquire her outstanding name because columbines are the state flower of Colorado?"

"Better look up your history, my dear," replied her father. "Cousin Columbine must be over seventy and Colorado didn't become a state until 1876. I'll admit that I probably remember the date because it's also the year that I was born," he added honestly.

"But how," asked Jack, "did an uncle of yours land way off in the wild West, Dad?"

"You've heard the story numberless times, son."

"Not for a long while, and I never gave it any special thought, but I guess for one lone member of a family to start off for the wilderness. How'd it happen?"

James Nelson glanced at his sister, and she said: "As I recall the story, Father's half-brother, Jethro

Nelson, who was a good bit older than the others, possessed the wanderlust. He yearned to see something besides his native New Hampshire, and as his young wife was fired with the same ambition, they started West in a covered wagon, drawn by oxen unless my memory's at fault."

"Alone?" questioned the boy, leaning forward eagerly.

"Oh, no! There were three other wagons in the caravan, or whatever they called it. Part of those pioneers turned back somewhere in Kansas, frightened, I believe, by the Indians who had proved too hard on his wife, and instead of reaching some settlement, Denver or possibly Aurora (which was flourishing because of the gold rush) for the event, her baby was born in a covered wagon at the spot which was later to be called Pine Ridge."

"And that baby was Cousin Columbine?" asked Nancy.

Her aunt nodded, while Dad took up the narrative.

"Here's where her name comes in, daughter. Early next morning Uncle Jed discovered some enormous blue and white columbines growing near by and carried the whole clump in to the new mother. The story goes that she uttered an exclamation of rapture at their beauty, and cried out: 'Columbines! I know now what we'll call our little daughter!'"

"Do you suppose," asked Jack, "if he'd presented the lady with a cactus blossom she'd have named her baby Cactusrose?"

"Goodness gracious, boy, have you no sentiment?" reproved Aunt Judy.

"And the fact that you've been studying botany cries aloud. Cactusrose! I never heard the word before."

"Nor I," admitted Mother. "But do you mean to say, Jim, that a man who possessed the wanderlust was content to stay right where Fate landed him for the rest of his natural life?"

"Indeed no," spoke up Aunt Louise, "and in my opinion Uncle Jed's poor wife had a lonely time of it. He was forever leaving her to seek good fortune and adventure. That was, I imagine, after other settlers joined them. Years later he did strike silver at Leadville; but his wife had died of hardship before that. I believe she never saw the 'mansion' Cousin Columbine's so proud of. Uncle Jed was the big man of the town in Pine Ridge then, though the place isn't much more than a settlement now. Anyway, it isn't on the map."

"And she expects us to send Nancy to a place like that?" gasped Mother. "I didn't realize it was so isolated."

"But how could it be so isolated?" binned, observed Aunt Judy, "and perhaps she's lonely."

"I wonder if she'd be satisfied with my?" suggested Jack. "I have a touch of this wanderlust myself."

"You'd make a swell dressmaker," jeered his sister; and then, being called to the telephone by one of the admirers of whom Cousin Columbine would disapprove, promptly forgot the matter.

CHAPTER III.

Now, meeting Jack's eager eyes as he perched on the foot of her antique four-poster, the memory of that family dinner all rushed back. Regardless of the cold air and a sleeveless pink crepe nightgown, Nancy sat up, startled, and stared at her brother in dismay.

"Why, Jack Nelson! You—you're not implying that I ought to go away off to Colorado just for a paltry twenty-five dollars a month, are you?"

"Pipe down," warned Jack, "or like as not Mother'll come butting in, and I want to talk things over with you first. I can't sleep, Nancy. I keep thinking about Dad. You know how he is—always seeing the bright side of everything; but he admitted to-night that he was down and out. That means flat broke, doesn't it?"

And even if I got some sort of job it probably wouldn't much more than pay my car fares and lunches for a year or two. And there's you—simply a parlor ornament and—"

"Thanks," broke in his sister coldly, sliding down under the puff again. "You don't need to rub it in just now, do you?"

"I don't intend to rub in anything; but there's no need of side-stepping the truth, either. I suppose you could help Mother 'round the house some; but with Aunt Judy gone, and Aunt Lou home only Sundays, there won't be a awful lot to do. And I've a notion she'd rather keep busy anyway, so's not to think about things. I suppose she's just about heart-broken over you."

"Nancy said nothing for a moment; then: 'Do you think it will add to her happiness if I'm two thousand miles away, all alone, living with a queer old woman we've never seen, and dying of homesickness?'"

"No," said Jack. "I think she'd worry herself sick. But if you weren't alone, Nancy—if I went too—"

"You!" interrupted the girl, amazed. "Why, how do you know that Cousin Columbine would take you in?"

Jack hitched an inch or two nearer, his eyes bright with interest.

"I don't expect her to; but she might get me a job on some ranch. Sis, I've always been crazy to see the West and with us both away earning our own living, things would be easier for Dad and Mother."

"But you said yourself, Jack, that what Cousin Columbine wanted was a slave!"

"Oh, forget it. I was just talking. If she has a woman coming every day the work can't kill you; and if I were near enough so we'd get together every little while, it wouldn't be so bad. And we'd be helping Dad, Nancy. Honestly helping him. He wouldn't even have to feed us!"

"The girl gave way to a reluctant smile."

"Is my appetite as fearful a thing as that? Why you talk as if we had to apply to the Salvation Army for Christmas dinner! Dad can't be so hard up that we'll have to worry about food, Jack."

"But it costs less to support three than five, my dear. You can't get away from that. If you say the word I'll send an air mail letter to Cousin Columbine to-morrow. I'll explain what's happened, and ask if I can get a job out there. We needn't say a word to Mother until we hear from her. I'll ask her to telegraph."

"Nancy looked at the boy curiously, as if she were observing a stranger. Jack was only seventeen and his sister had always regarded him with the tolerance nineteen bestows upon a younger brother. Now, suddenly, he seemed older than herself, for at the first hint of trouble he had put his shoulder to the wheel. It made Nancy feel a bit ashamed of herself; for she knew that it was not Jack's boyish curiosity to see the West which caused him to make this plan, but a genuine desire to help his father.

"Well?" he questioned with impatience.

"The girl drew in a quivering breath."

"Do—do you think we must, Jack? I'll admit that the idea—terrifies me."

"Oh, be your age, Nancy! We're not going into darkest Africa."

"I know, but it's so awfully far away. Suppose we get sick—had appendicitis or something."

Jack laughed softly.

"The only way you'll get appendicitis is by over-eating! We never have been sick—either of us—so why worry? I don't say it'll be all fun by any means; but we will be learning something about the country, as the old lady said; and it's not a life sentence. We'll come home soon as Dad gets his business straightened out. Be a sport, Sis, and let me write the letter."

"Without asking Dad—or Mother?"

He nodded.

"There'll be time enough to talk it over when we hear from Cousin Columbine. Like as not she'll veto the whole scheme; but even if they won't consent after we've made our plans, Nancy, no harm will be done."

"Well," agreed Nancy with sudden resolution, "go on and write."

"That's the stuff!"

Jack slid his long legs off the bed and proceeded, as noiselessly as possible to open the windows again.

"Night, Sis. I know you'd see sense after I showed it to you. And don't you dare let on we're up to anything. Just keep mum."

It was not so hard to "keep mum" as Nancy expected. The next few days were strenuous ones for the older members of the family, and the answering letter from Colorado was completely forgotten. Jack, who did not return to Kester on Monday, spent two of those days driving his mother and Aunt Judy to Edgemoor in his beloved "Mary Ann," so they could look into conditions at the old home and decide what furniture must be sent out from the city.

Reclamation Work

Expenditure Of Half A Million Dollars In Saskatchewan

Federal government drought area reclamation work will involve the expenditure of approximately half a million dollars in Saskatchewan this season, according to unofficial information obtained at Regina. This will involve activity in three main spheres, namely: (1) construction of dams and excavation of small dugouts and reservoirs; (2) establishment of numerous agricultural utilization stations; and (3) organization of township areas in the province.

According to draft plans, the erection of dams and excavation of reservoirs will be accomplished through bonusing farmers and ranchers in the drought areas on a yardage basis for the work they do.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

—By Aline Michaelis—

ROUGH AND LEVEL GROUND

She never showed her weariness,
Nor did her courage wane;
Her look was like a lifted flag,
Her voice was hope's refrain.

She let no longings conquer her;
But always took with pride
The sweet things with the bitter
Things that life would divide.

For she was wise enough to know
Since Earth was first begun
The kind and cruel, side by side,
Through being's tide has run.

The things of dream, the things of dream
She took with equal grace,
And some still light more deep than joy
Was shining on her face.

The sweet and bitter come to all
And with a faith profound
She took them as a runner takes
The rough and level ground.

Theory About Dust Storms

U.S. Navy Astronomer Says Winds Are Ending Drought Period

The dust storms, we are assured by the Navy astronomer, Captain T. J. See, are a proof that the winds have returned that bring rain to the earth. He tells us that the drought period ended last August and that the terrific winds that have been scouring the soil from our Western plains are prophets of good rather than evil. Moreover, he foretells no more drought for seven years. But, alas, the bow of promise spans vast regions damaged past recovery—Providence Journal.

According to the latest statistics, Canadians consumed 30.92 pounds of butter; 3.64 pounds of cheese, and 6.28 pounds of concentrated milk products per head of population during 1934.

Treatment Was Success

"Twilight Narcole" New Cure For Mild Mental Cases

Twilight sleep for men as well as women, during mild insanity of both sexes, was reported to the American Psychiatric Association, at Washington.

Several successful cases were described, including one that might be called "stock marketitis," a man caught in the 1929 crash, who not only broke mentally but was in physical pain.

This form of sleep, which he called "twilight narcole," was described by A. L. Skoog, M.D., of Kansas City. It gives patients a form of sodium amylal, which puts them into a condition resembling drugged sleepiness.

They can speak occasionally, but are mostly too drowsy even for that. This condition lasts for hours, during which the physician talks to them. His words are the only treatment.

The businessman who cracked up after 1929 was worried, slept poorly, was unable to work, had pain in the back and other places, shrivelling of some parts of his body, and spells of fear.

Examination showed no disease. He was put to sleep twice, 12 days apart. Both times his physician talked, telling him he could hope for full recovery, that he had no internal disorders, that he was not shrivelled and that his brain was normal.

A few weeks of rest followed and the man recovered. He became healthy and returned to business.

First Gliding By Night

Member Of London Club Made A Perfect Landing

A member of the London Gliding Club, C. Nicholson, has done what is believed to be the first gliding by night in the United Kingdom. Hurricane lamps, placed on the highest points of the downs by members of the club, and the moon shining, too, enabled Nicholson to make the flight in safety. Clouds came over the moon after he had been in the air about 40 minutes, and he decided to land.

A flash-lamp which Nicholson carried, and the head-lamps of a motor car, were used to exchange messages between the pilot and members of the London Gliding Club on the ground. Aided by motor car lights and the hurricane lamps the glider made a perfect landing.

Have Four-Hour Day

Members of the Munich Bird Society of Munich, Germany, have discovered that storks flying south to escape the European winter travel only four hours a day, spending the other 20 in feeding, resting and sleeping. They average over 30 miles an hour in their flight of thousands of miles over the stork airways.

Ravages of influenza threaten the winter's food supply of Eskimos along the Bering sea, for while the whaling season is here there aren't enough able bodied men to join the hunt.

Little Helps For This Week

I will praise Thee O Lord with my whole heart, I will show forth all Thy marvellous works. Psalm 9:1.

Thrice best will all our blessings be.

When we can look through them to Thee;
When each glad heart its tribute pays
Of love, and gratitude and praise.

That which befits us, embossed in beauty and wonder as we are, is cheerfulness and courage, and the endeavor to realize our aspirations. Shall not the heart that has received so much trust the Power by which it lives? May it not quit other leadings and listen to the Soul that has guided it so gently and taught it so much, secure that the future will be worthy of the past.—R. W. Emerson.

I have experienced that the habit of taking out of the hand of the Lord every little blessing and brightness on our path, confirms us in an especial manner in communion with His love.

A Record Achievement

Germany's Graf Zeppelin Has Crossed Ocean Ninety Times

Graf Zeppelin, Germany's veteran air-liner, has theoretically spanned the earth 24 times, if you figure out the mileage covered by it during 423 trips in 9,817 hours in the air.

This record achievement was noted on the occasion of the resumption of the South American service of the Graf after a winter interval.

The Graf Zeppelin crossed the ocean 90 times up to this year. It carried altogether around 30,000 passengers, five million pieces of mail and more than 84,000 pounds of all sorts of freight.
